GROUND BROKEN FOR NEW HOME — From left, Michael Wimberly, president of Habitat for Humanity MetroWest/Greater Worcester; Laura Bisceglia; Ornella Bisceglia; and Edwin Shea, Worcester market president of Bank of America, break ground at the site of the Bisceglia's future home at 16 Fales St., the nonprofit's 34th home built in the last 26 years. The home will connect to an existing Habitat home at 18 Fales St., creating a duplex. Bank of America is the lead sponsor of the project, donating $47,500 toward the cost of building the home. Ornella Bisceglia and her 9-year-old daughter, Laura, have been selected to occupy the new home. Ms. Bisceglia works at the University of Massachusetts Medical School as a research lab technician and is currently living in Shrewsbury. (MATT WRIGHT)
